

People to Remember on Memorial Day

Here are just a few people you could remember from the past who in some way made your life better. You could remember the person who:

- Gave you money when you really needed it
- Took the blame for something you did, either as a child or an adult
- Believed in you when others didn't, or when you didn't believe in yourself
- Loved you even when you were unlovable
- Taught you how to read. Imagine life today if you didn't know how to read
- Let you off the hook for something you did
- Forgave you
- Gave you a job when others would not hire you
- Was silent when they had every right to chew you out for something you
- Served as role model for you.
- Told you tough things you needed to hear
- Took your side, when everyone else was against you
- Listened to you
- Set their needs aside to meet your needs
- Loved you unconditionally
- Let you win an argument, even though they were right and you were wrong
- Brought out the best in you
- Chose not to believe the gossip they heard about you
- Asked for your help
- Gave you hope when you had none yourself
- Invited you to dream
- Wanted to hear about your kids and grandkids
- Rejoiced with you in the things you were rejoicing about
- Mourned with you when you were mourning
- Let you talk on and on, without ever shifting the spotlight of the conversation on to them
- Sat in the crowded back seat of the car so you could sit up front
